CASH INTRIGUE

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

MR. CHESTER has seized with vigor upon a dream of the utmost possible reach of American financial power, turned it to the uses of romance, and realized it through characters of tremendous energy, heroic passions and gigantic ambitions. It is the tale of the man who cornered the cash of the country.

But it is even more the tale of the two women who loved him.

Illustrated by M. Leone Bracker. 12mo, cloth, $1.50

DIAMOND MASTER

By JACQUES FUTRELLE

HOW to make diamonds out of brown sugar, how to make love bloom in young hearts, how to make romantic excitement out of scientific formulae,—these are secrets possessed by Jacques Futrelle.

His agile and daring invention, his dashing spirit, and the lightning-quick stroke of his style have never shown before to such excellent advantage.

The story is like the myriad gems which make its theme,—flawless, intensely brilliant, dazzlingly bright.

A Most Useful and Attractive Work

Old Time Recipes for Home Made Wines

Cordials and Liqueurs from Fruits, Flowers, Vegetables, etc.

Compiled by HELEN S. WRIGHT.

This work will, we are assured, appeal to many. In compact but attractive form it combines a list of valuable recipes, and a beautiful and artistic gift book. The compiler has been most thorough, introducing us to a wonderful variety of rare and treasured old formulas for the preparation of a great variety of home-made wines and liqueurs, over whose wealth of color and delicacy of flavor the eyes and palates of bygone generations of our country and gentlefolk delighted to linger. The volume is decorated by beautiful marginal drawings by A. J. IORIO.

Cloth, 12mo, Gilt Top, $1.50

N. B.—These recipes are all of undoubted authenticity, having stood the test of long and wide use. The only modification, in any case, made at the present printing, being in the reducing of the quantities to suit the scope and limitations of modern housekeeping.

DR. SALEEBY'S

PARENTHOOD AND RACE CULTURE

"We have already," writes the specialist who reviews it in the number just to hand of the Charleston News and Courier, "we have already given more attention to this book than our space warrants, but it is so important that it cannot be lightly considered. The author realizes that Eugenics can accomplish nothing until it has created a public opinion in its favor, until its principles and its objects are well understood. The science is in its beginning but the writer ventures the opinion that MR. SALEEBY'S BOOK IS AS EPOCH-MAKING AS WAS DARWIN'S FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE WORLD. "This is a book which should be read by every man who is interested in human improvement and progress * * * We avouch that no work of greater importance has been issued in America for years."

Certainly no book for years has received the mass of expert endorsement which is being heaped by the medical press upon

TUBERCULOSIS

A Preventable and Curable Disease

And now comes the American Library Association which describes it in the A. L. A. Booklist for October this way: "A readable, suggestive treatise by a recognized authority. Discusses infection and hygiene; the duties of patient, family, municipal, state and federal authorities, employers, educators, etc.; the home adaptation of sanatorium treatment, and the relation of campaign to other reform movements. * * * Perhaps the best book in print for popular use. It should be on the shelves of EVERY PUBLIC LIBRARY."

ISAAC TAYLOR HEADLAND

Court Life in China

THE CAPITAL, ITS OFFICIALS AND PEOPLE

¶ Prof. Headland's vivid sketches of Chinese social life have awakened unusual interest as they have appeared in The Century, Everybody's, The Cosmopolitan, The Outlook and other magazines.

¶ From most intimate association he has prepared this fascinating account of facts little known outside of Chinese Court Circles. Much has been said of the Empress Dowager but no one has previously succeeded in giving such an appreciative picture of this renowned ruler.

¶ To Mrs. Headland's invaluable aid Prof. Headland gives credit for this revelation of hitherto hidden facts regarding the human side of this ruler of one-third the world's population. Illustrated, Cloth, net $1.50.

EDWARD A. STEINER

The Immigrant Tide

ITS EBB AND FLOW

¶ Perhaps the greatest living authority on the immigrant to-day is the author of On the Trail of the Immigrant, now in its fifth edition. His latest work is written in his familiar journalistic style. Under "The Out-Going Tide" he shows us the influence of the returned immigrant upon his peasant home, his social and national life, etc.

¶ Under "The Incoming Tide" he interprets the relation of the various races to our institutions, their attitude toward them and their influence upon them.

¶ Altogether the work is a delightfully fascinating study of the varied characters, temperaments, traits, aspirations, etc., of the immigrant. Illustrated, Cloth, net $1.50.

MARGARET E. SANGSTER

From My Youth Up

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

¶ The most fascinating work to which Mrs. Sangster has ever devoted her pen is found in these vivid recollections of her useful life from her birth up to the present time.

¶ Margaret Sangster's entertaining story of many of the events of the last half century—through the days of war—of reconstruction, of editorial responsibility, of mingling with the leading literary lights of these most fruitful years, are now for the first time found in print. Illustrated, Cloth, net, $1.50.

Two Big Books. Watch Them!

Happy Hawkins

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

16 pictures by GILES

$1.50

A gripping story of the whole Far West. The talking points are:

Action
Humor
Open Air Spirit
Great Plot
Optimism

Know "Happy," and Be Happy!!

What the Reviews say:

"Happy Hawkins is the story of a cowboy told by himself. It abounds in rollicking fun, daring adventures, thrilling encounters and romance. The author displays a gift for humorous narrative that places him on a plane with Mark Twain. The phosphorescent goat, Cupid, the brindle bull-terrier, Happy's experience in a sailboat—such incidents as these are screamingly laughable."—Springfield Union.

"A rattling good yarn of life in the cattle country, crammed full of lively action, spirited dialogue and humor."—Chicago Record Herald.

"Happy tells his story so intimately that you can almost imagine yourself seated in a ranch bunkhouse listening to him."—Boston Transcript.

"The finished work of a great storyteller. Comparison places 'Happy Hawkins' in the same class with 'The Virginian.'"—Rochester.

Trespass

By MRS. HENRY DUDENEY

Author of "Folly Corner," "Rachel Lorian," etc.

$1.25 net; postage, 12 cts.

A novel of English life for those who discriminate.

It is a story of two men and one woman—"the eternal triangle." Note what the critics are saying:

"It is masterly, a really profound study of motive and character. Like 'Tess of the D'Urbervilles,' it deals boldly with the problems of passion, and may offend in this way, but, like that book also, it is essentially dramatic, a searching exposition of human nature under the stress of conflicting emotions."—The Outlook.

"Mrs. Humphry Ward at her best does not surpass this work."—Book News Monthly.

"Mrs. Dudeney's books have all shown remarkable strength, literary feeling and capacity in the depiction of character. In this book she springs lightly, on tiptoe, with a winged step. It is a pleasure to read the pages of this novel, just for the sake of the color, the sparkle, the suggestiveness of the sentences."—New York Times.

"Possessing that quality of interestingness indispensable to a good story, 'Trespass' has something more; it goes deeply into the great soul of a man to whom nature has denied a great body or even a great ambition, yet to whom she has given the opportunity to prove himself one of the few lovers that have ever existed in the world whose love can withstand every shock, even to the faithlessness of the loved one."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Mrs. Dudeney's novel has power and vivid emotionalism. Strength of line and warmth of color, first one and then the other, are dominant in her character painting. The author has a barbed wit and a lucid style. She tells a passionate tale in a style that is almost passionless, but restraint is a rare virtue, and it makes distinctly for power."—St. Paul Dispatch.

"Seldom has such a theme been treated with so light and yet so masterly a touch.——Pittsburgh Post.

"A powerful novel on a great subject."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Calling of Dan Matthews

Praised Everywhere

Buffalo Evening News—"Its portrayal of character carries with it the assurance of truth. * * * Mr. Wright has written other novels but this one is so strong and wholesome, so attractive as literature, so interesting as a story, so artistic in preparation that it wins increasing favor as one gets into it."

Pittsburgh Post—"'The Calling of Dan Matthews,' by Harold Bell Wright, by the very power and strength and dramatic force with which it is endowed, will take rank among the best novels of the year. It fairly throbs with heart interest. Indeed, for purpose, for keen introspection, for stirring climaxes, for dramatic power and for the depth of its philosophy, it far transcends anything that has recently appeared in the name of fiction."

Duluth News Tribune—"It complies with Zola's definition of a novel: 'A corner in life seen through a temperament.' This corner happens to be typical of the four corners of the United States, and the temperament through which we see it gives an honest reflection. If Harold Bell Wright continues in the path he is following he may wake up some morning and find he has written the great American novel for which the publishers and critics have been waiting these many moons."

NOTES IN SEASON.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have just ready "Social Service and the Art of Healing," by Dr. Richard Clarke Cabot, assistant professor of clinical medicine at Harvard University, who dwells strongly upon the great influence, mental as well as physical, exerted by the physician and the necessity of his knowledge of every subject of interest to the world of today as well as of the science of medicine; also, a novel by Edith Rickert called "The Beggar in the Heart," in which the American heroine plays an interesting part among English surroundings.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY will have ready October 23 "The Cash Intrigue," by George Randolph Chester, who pleased so many readers with "The Making of Bobby Burnet," the tale of a man who cornered the cash of the country and shows the utmost possible reach of American financial power; and "The Diamond Master," by Jacques Futrelle, author of "Elusive Isabel," telling how to make diamonds of brown sugar, how to make romantic excitement out of scientific formulæ, and how to make love invade young hearts, all secrets this author divulges in his clever novel.

JOHN MCBRIDE CO., New York, will publish shortly "The Moving of the Waters," by Jay Cady, the story of a baby girl rescued from a derelict boat on the Mississippi and brought up by a poor, lonely couple living in an old houseboat until she becomes a noble woman and her past history is unfolded; "Steve's Woman," by Mrs. Havelock Ellis, a story written for mature minds by a scholarly writer of the bond of matrimony between an ill-matched man and woman; and "The Iron Cardinal: the Romance of Richelieu," by Joseph McCabe, an authoritative biography giving a good analysis of the complex character of this remarkable figure of the eighteenth century.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish during October "Emily Fox-Seton," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, being "The Making of a Marchioness" and "The Methods of Lady Walderhurst" in one volume; "Lady Mechante, or, Life as It Should Be," a novel by Gelett Burgess, illustrated by himself; "The Nest of the Sparrowhawk," by Baroness Orczy; "Lincoln's Legacy of Inspiration to Americans," by Frederick Trevor Hill; "Chats on Old Silver," by Mrs. Lowes; and the following juveniles, all illustrated: "Billy Possum," by J. Carter Beard; "The Complete Mother Goose," by Ethel Franklin Betts; "Blue Goops and Red," by Gelett Burgess; and "The Irish Fairy Book," by Alfred Percival Graves.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will shortly publish "Abraham Lincoln—the People's Leader in the Struggle for National Existence," by George Haven Putnam, the head of the firm. Mr. Putnam has utilized the address given by him on the Centennial Commemoration Day, February 12 of this year, as the nucleus of this monograph, which gives a fine picture of the patience, persistence and untiring patriotic spirit of the War President, his relations with his successive army commanders and with his Cabinet. He has also been able to include with his monograph a reprint of the famous address given by Lincoln at Cooper Institute in February, 1860, at the invitation of the Young Men's Republican Club of New York, with the invaluable historical annotations by Cephas Brainerd, of the New York Bar, and an introduction by Judge Charles C. Nott, written in 1908.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books issued by publishers who protect the prices of their new publications are preceded in this list by the double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. Works of fiction (not net) of which a minimum price is protected by their publishers, are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not protected are preceded by a single asterisk *, and the word net follows the price. ☜

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

One of a new series designed to provide teachers of French and their pupils with less familiar and, to a large extent, hitherto unedited texts, as varied as possible with respect to difficulty and to subject matter. Others of the series will be found in this Record.

Arnold, Channing, and Frost, F: J. Tabor. The American Egypt; a record of travel in Yucatan; with il., maps and plans. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1909. 14+391 p. Q. cl., *$3.80 net.

Observation and travel through the strangest country of North America where Central American civilization reached its height centuries ago. The authors believe the theory that Amrica's first architects were Buddhist emigrants from Java and Indo-China. They think the Toltec theory a gross error, as American Indians have never shown any architecture to compare with some of the old buildings and monuments of Central America which rival those of Egypt in design and execution. The authors are English. The publishers have made a handsomely illustrated book.

A fairy tale for grown-ups, or rather an allegory, is this latest book by Mrs. Burnett. It tells how peace, love and prosperity came to the country of King Amor from the cultivation of the blue flower. The little story is full of symbolism. The pages are decorated in color, and in the frontispiece Sigismond de Ivanowski has caught the spirit of the tale delightfully.

Gilder, R: Watson. Lincoln the leader, and Lincoln's genius for expression. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. 108 p. D. cl., $1.

Since the days when, as a young man in the Civil War, he first came under the spell of President Lincoln's mind and personality, Mr. Gilder has been a student of the great President's career. He has had special opportunities of acquiring first hand information about Lincoln, which is not always accessible in print. In these essays he deals with those qualities which made the great President a leader among men, and with his wonderful power of expression which amounted to genius.

Gordon, G: Angier, D.D. Religion and miracle. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. 11+244 p. D. cl., $1.30 net.

Author is Congregational minister in the Old South Church, Boston. He wishes to show that where miracle has ceased to be regarded as true, Christianity remains in its essence entire. He takes up successively, "Belief in God and miracle," "The Christian life and miracle," "Jesus Christ and miracle." Two things only Dr. Gordon asserts are absolutely essential to the Christian religion—the sense of the fatherly love of God and the answering sense of man's filial love and obedience. He is sane, human and totally free from cant.

Hamilton, Ja. Shelley. The new sophomore. N. Y., Appleton, 1909. c. 297 p. pls. D. cl., †$1.50.

By the author of "Butt Chanler, freshman." In this book the same boys appear as in the former one, but the real hero is a new classmate of Butt's named Bill, who has a great deal of ability in unravelling mysteries. The even-year classes at Tresham have a bronze statue of Sabrina, the river goddess of "Comus," which is only seen once a year and only one man ever knows where it is kept hidden. Bill uses his detective talent with direful results, but he is finally able to restore the statue to his class after he has almost been the cause of their losing it.

Lively and amusing and yet highly sensible discussion of the general principles and value of good manners to-day and at all times, illustrated by innumerable anecdotes and good stories. This is not a book of etiquette, but aims to treat of the principles from which good manners proceed—the instincts of a gentleman, the principles of the gentle life. By the author of "How to be happy though married" and "John Chinaman at home."

Hocking, W: Ernest. On the law of history. Berkeley, Cal., University of California Press, 1909. 45-65 p. Q. (University of California publications; Philosophy.) pap., 20 c.

A scholarly statement of the thoughts on this subject held by the greater thinkers, from Hegel to the present. Author thinks with the proper key these varying thoughts may be proved compatible and lead to further progressive understanding. He also points out the importance of material nature in the study of the most abstract problems.

Hutten, Baroness Bettina von. Beechy; or, the lordship of love; with a colored front. by A. G. Learned. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1909.] c. 381 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The scene is Italy. A little orphan girl loses her father when eleven years of age. She dresses as a boy, makes the acquaintance of the opera director, a man in deadly fear of his wife, and under his auspices becomes a great opera singer. The opera of Carman is specially well described. The story is laid in the early eighties when this opera was at the height of its great popularity. Later Beechy shifts to England to find her mother's English people. At the climax of her success she meets her fate and counts everything well lost for the sake of the man she loves. Her love story is wholly original.

Ingram, Eleanor M. The game and the candle; with il. by P. D. Johnson. Indianapolis, Ind., Bobbs-Merrill Co., [1909.] c. 328 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A tale of thrilling adventure and intrigue at the Russian court has for its hero a young American, who, to save his family from dire poverty, deliberately commits a felony. He is captured, imprisoned, rescued by a Russian Grand Duke, and the clever tale has new surprises at every turn. It is laid out to be among the sellers.

Providence, R. I., Preston & Rounds Co., 1909. c. 7+10-207 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Author is Pastor Emeritus of the First Baptist Church, Providence, R. I., a fresh interpretation of one of the most interesting characters of the English Commonwealth, who strove so valiantly for freedom of conscience in England and New England. His portrait stands out amid the confusion and struggle of his time, calm, serene, consistent, heroic. This well-written book will help to make real to the present generation one who was a vital force in one of the greatest movements in modern history.

Kingsley, Mrs. Florence Morse. The star of love; with 8 il. in color by Arthur Becher. N. Y., Appleton, 1909. c. '08. 382 p. O. cl., $2.

The author of "Titus" has now written the story of the beautiful Queen Esther, the Hebrew maiden whose purity and goodness won for her the love of the great King Xerxes after he had put away his wife Vashti, who had offended him. Mrs. Kingsley is a close student of biblical history, and she tells the story of Esther, her Uncle Mordecai, and the arch-plotter Haman so that the influences that saved the great Jewish nation are made very real to her readers.

The emeritus professor of English, Yale University, has written, in easy conversational style, this book in support of spelling reform. It is not addressed to scholars, but to the average intelligent reader, and is especially intended to remove "the unintelligent opposition of the intelligent." Considerable space is devoted to the orthographic situation and to phonetic spelling. Verbal and general indexes.

"Lovell, Ingraham," pseud. Margarita's soul; the romantic recollections of a man of fifty; with il. by J. Scott Williams and Whistler butterfly decorations. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1909. c. 304 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author writes under a pseudonym, and Edith Wharton, Booth Tarkington, Ida Tarbell and W. J. Locke are all suspected. It is an American story, but the heroine having been kept like Miranda on an island finally sees her share of the world and learns her lesson of living among her kind in a most original manner. The publishers have made a pretty book with 16 full-page illustrations, numerous marginal drawings by J. Scott Williams and Whistler butterfly decorations. First appeared in the American Magazine.

McElroy, J: The struggle for Missouri. Wash., D. C., National Tribune Co., 1909. c. 9+342 p. O. cl., $2.

The author, who is editor of the National Tribune, Washington, D. C., intends to write a history of the Civil War by campaigns, devoting a volume to each one he takes up. The present book treats of the fight which was made in Missouri by the Confederacy in order to secure that state for their support. The struggle ended in 1862, when Missouri was firmly buckled to the Union, the fighting after that being merely guerilla raids.

Mackenzie, Millicent. Hegel's educational theory and practice; with an introd. note by J. S. Mackenzie. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1909. 21+192 p. D. cl., $1.

Author is professor of education, University College, Cardiff, Wales. Hegel's philosophy of education was idealistic in tendency, holding that first attention was to be given to the classics, as offering best opportunities for self-estrangement; then moral and religious instruction as affording guidance and inspiration along with intellectual training. This book gives a complete view of Hegel's writings.

Olin, Helen R. The women of a state university; an illustration of the working of co-education in the Middle West. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. c. 9+308 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

A history of forty years of education at the University of Wisconsin is given. Co-education is now receiving great attention and there are increasing arguments in favor of segregation. The book gives special attention to the subject of what women do with the education they receive from the state and clearly defines the relation of the education to public service and its claim to public support. The author holds women could do far more with their college education if they were given the opportunity by the Faculties and the government.

Page, T: Nelson. John Marvel, assistant; il. by Ja. Montgomery Flagg. N. Y., Scribner, 1909. c. 573 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Wolffert, a brilliant, passionate Jew, Henry Glase, a well-meaning and generous Southerner, who tells the story, and John Marvel, plodding, quiet, cheery and self-sacrificing, meet as students in a Southern college. The antipathy between the first two ends unexpectedly in strong friendship, but between Wolffert and Marvel exists unbreakable affection. After a few years spent in a Southern city Glase goes West, where he finds Wolffert deep in Socialistic work, and Marvel, a pastor, doing great deeds among the poor of his parish. Eleanor Leigh, daughter of a capitalist, is the heroine, who figures in dramatic scenes brought about by the social unrest of the times. All three men are in love with her, Glase openly and the other two secretly. The fate of all three works out consistently with their varying characters.

Paine, Ralph Delahaye. The ships and sailors of old Salem; the record of a brilliant era of American achievement. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1909. c. '08. 15+693 p. pls. pors. facsims., O. cl., *$3.50 net.

Formerly published by the Outing Publishing Co. Salem was the greatest centre for sailing vessels in the United States, and from thence sailed many a gallant ship to strange foreign countries where it was the first American boat to appear. The old town can claim to be the pioneer of commerce in this country and during the years between the Revolution and the War of 1812, and indeed until after the Civil War, when steam drove out the old sailing vessel, Salem held a proud position in the world of trade. Mr. Paine has gathered such narratives as the first American voyages to Japan, India, the Philippines, Guam, Cape of Good Hope, Sumatra, Arabia and the South Seas from log books, sea journals and other unpublished manuscripts, and it makes a thrilling account of varied adventures. Index.

Querido, I. Toil of men. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. 366 p. D. cl., *$1.35 net.

The author rose to great fame in Holland at the age of twenty-three with his "Meditations on literature and life." He rose from direst poverty and knows of what he speaks in his three great novels, "Levenszang," "Zagepraal" and "Menschnever," the latter here translated as "Toil of man." It is a tale of the life of the fields and is divided into sections under titles of the four seasons. The poacher Kees is a terrific figure of the spirit of revolt in a violent nature capable of pathetic tenderness. There is a note of Balzac and of Zola in the great cry of the downtrodden workers of the field.

Quick, J: Herbert. Virginia of the air lanes; with il. by W: R. Leigh. Indianapolis, Ind., Bobbs-Merrill Co., [1909.] c. 424 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Air-ships that are like ocean-going vessels for size and convenience are in ordinary use in this more than up-to-date tale of adventure and commercial war. A young army officer has invented a wonderful aëronef and forms the Carson-Craighead Aëronef Co., which is violently opposed by the Aërostatic Power Co., headed by the heroine's uncle. There are flights in air-ships, descents by parachutes, encounters with smugglers and financial pirates before love and honor triumph and the hero wins his reward.

A fairy story telling the adventures of a little boy who goes into an enchanted forest to rescue the daughter of his king. He meets giants, dwarfs, talking animals, birds and other creatures that help him by their magic to conquer cruel gnomes and monsters who hold the little princess in thrall.

Reynolds, Stephen. The Holy Mountain; a satire on English life. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1909. 309 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A satirical romance of the tendencies of the day. The hero, a grocer's son, removes a mountain from Wiltshire to Creton. The effect of this miracle on the minds of everyday men and women—agnostics, freethinkers, politicians, the press, the police and local celebrities of all denominations—offers the author a fine opportunity for humor and sarcasm. Everyone exploits the event to his own purpose. The author describes without directing and the reader is cleverly left to draw his own conclusion.

Wells, Herbert G: Ann Veronica: a modern love story. N. Y., Harper, 1909. c. 377 p. col. front. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of the unrest of the modern woman and the jumble of theories and ideas she is pursuing to be free and to change the plans of nature. Ann Veronica is misunderstood by her conventional London father; she runs away to London determined to earn her own living. She has had a college education and is studying biology with enthusiasm. She mixes with suffragettes, gets into prison, finally goes back to her father, but the unrest continues. She meets the man she loves and all her longings for higher ideals vanish. She believes in the love she has despised, but to the end she remains unbalanced and highly emotional.

That creedless man is no longer satisfied with his materialism, but is being aroused by some innate force to accept, or at least to admit, the existence of the thing we know, variously, as the soul, the spirit or the mind must be evident to the most casual student who keeps in touch with the literature of the day. Dr. Winbigler reinforces his own experiences, as student and teacher, with quotations from a dozen books written by scientists and eminent laymen, to prove the power of suggestion and its absolute ability to cure evil habits, alleviate pain and bring man to a higher realization of his existence. JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Century Magazine is to publish serially Miss May Sinclair's new novel, the first chapters in the November issue. This latest work, by the author of "The Divine Fire," is a story of artists and writers in London, and will be published under title of "The Creators: a Comedy."

THE well-known London journalist and author, Clement K. Shorter, has undertaken a regular semi-monthly English literary letter for The Dial. Probably no one in London is more closely in touch with the world of books and authors than Mr. Shorter; certainly no one is able to write of them more informingly and entertainingly. Mr. Shorter's first letter appears in The Dial for October 1.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 16, 1909.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE BOOKSELLER.

THE bookseller is one of the most potent factors in the education of the people, especially in the smaller towns and rural districts. He must therefore also be held responsible for much that has to do with the tone of literature. While the bookseller's responsibility is small in comparison with that of the author and publisher, yet it is important as having everything to do with the creation of the demand for certain kinds of literature, and authors are prone to excuse themselves for inferior work upon the plea that there is a demand for what they are writing. This has been amply proven during the past two years. Gradually, authors of greater or less popularity had been stretching the moral quality of their work to a point where it was still difficult to determine whether indecency had actually been reached. At the most it was "strong meat," or a "close study of nature," or something else that the bookseller could not define. However, such work created a sensation, was demanded by the half-baked public and purveyed by the half-informed or indifferent bookseller who was "making hay while the sun shone." And there were hundreds who easily furnished plausible excuses for doing so. Then came the breaking point when a well-known writer boldly crossed the line and produced a work that set the pace for a dozen other cheap imitations that step by step dropped every garment of shame until the indecent alone remained in its dull and stupid nakedness. These books, to the disgrace of the booktrade, sold by the thousands—indeed, we understand that of one of them upwards of 100,000 were sold. The debauch continued until some of the more sane and conscientious men in the trade raised their voices in protest so loud that it could be heard all over the country, with the result that the half dozen or more tainted titles were heard of no more from that time to this. Then the pendulum swung the other way, with the result that a number of finicky booksellers carried their scruples so far as to "turn down" books that deserved better treatment. However, as a sign of awakening to their responsibility in spreading education, this action was not altogether reprehensible, though a middle course had been better.

The prosperous tradesman in any line is apt to boast that his success depends not more upon keeping what his customers want than upon making his customers want what he keeps. This should be true in the booktrade, and for that reason the bookseller should be as familiar with the line of merchandise he undertakes to handle as is the druggist and grocer. His great opportunity comes with the customer who drops in for something to read, or to give away, and depends almost entirely upon the judgment of the bookseller in making the selection. To such a customer a duty is owed, and it would be no less dishonorable to sell him an unworthy book than it would be for a reputable tailor to sell shoddy clothing. The bookseller should keep good books —the selection can easily be made—and convince his customers of the desirability of having them. If the bookseller would follow out this plan consistently the author and publisher would soon realize the uselessness of producing any other than worthy literature.

THE Macy house has renewed its attacks upon the American Publishers' Association by bringing suit in the federal courts—a suit having been entered in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York. The claim made by the Macy house is for $375,000 damages. As all questions relating to the sale of uncopyrighted books have been settled by the payment of the sum awarded by the referee—$3702.98—this seems simply a repetition of the suits as to copyrighted books already twice settled by the Court of Appeals of the State of New York against the Macy claim, and, in another phase, again for the third time pending in the Court of Appeals, it seems improbable that anything more will come of this Federal suit than of the previous State suits in respect to copyrighted books.

THE HOOPER-JACKSON SUIT SETTLED.

THE dispute between Walter M. Jackson, of Newton, Mass., and Horace E. Hooper, of London, owners of the American and English Encyclopædia Britannica Companies, which led to litigation in Newark, N. J., has, according to the New York Times, been settled. The terms of the settlement have not yet been disclosed as the details are not completed.

As a conference between Mr. Jackson and counsel a statement was made that Mr. Hooper had made a buy-or-sell proposal, and, after due consideration, Mr. Jackson had decided to buy. The amount of the offer was not stated, but that it was a large sum is indicated by the fact that at the time of the court proceedings it was said that more than $4,000,000 was involved.

JOHNSON'S NEW SPRINGFIELD STORE OPENED.

THE formal opening of the book and stationery store of Henry R. Johnson is his new building on Main Street in Springfield, Mass., took place last week and was attended with much success. The Stevens band of Chicopee furnished the music and a large crowd was present. Mr. Johnson was the recipient of numerous congratulations upon the success he has met with in giving Springfield a store which is alike a credit to the city and to his progressive methods.

The work on the building which he has completely remodelled and changed over was completed early in the summer, and while it has been occupied by Mr. Johnson it was not until recently that the arrangements in the several departments were completed and ready for the inspection of the public. The new store which Mr. Johnson built on the old Hall Block is a design carried out in fire brick and terra-cotta and the effect is harmonious and pleasing, making the block one of the noticeable business buildings of the city.

Especial attention was given to lighting all the floors, and the large windows amply provide for this need. Similar windows are built in the rear and along the north side, and there are numerous skylights. The wide corridors are another feature of the building.

The store occupies three floors. On the second floor is the art department, including the picture framing department, sporting goods and art novelties. There is a mezzanine floor between the first and second floors, where the offices are located. A single broad staircase leads from this floor to the main floor of the store. The rear of the main store is occupied by the commercial department, where office fixtures and supplies are sold. There are also in the rear counters and shelves for stationery and engravings, cameras, fountain pens and post-cards. The entire front of the main store is given up to books under the management of Mr. V. N. Schenck. Imediately inside the main entrance is the magazine table and department.

BEST-SELLING BOOKS IN ENGLAND DURING SEPTEMBER.

ACCORDING to the London Book Monthly publishing, in England, has been brisk during September, and every year the autumn season begins earlier. Variety, too, has characterized the September books, for they have brought grist to the mill of all sorts of readers. The best-selling books issued in September have been the following:

Stradella. F. Marion Crawford.
They and I. Jerome K. Jerome.
Diamond Cut Paste. Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Castle.
Seymour Charlton. W. B. Maxwell.
Open Country. Maurice Hewlett.
My Recollections, by the Countess of Cardigan.

OBITUARY NOTES.

NAPHTALI HERZ IMBER, the poet and author of the Zionist national anthem, died on October 8 at the Har Moriah Hospital in New York City.

HERMANN GREVEL, the well-known foreign bookseller and publisher of King Street, Covent Garden, London, Eng., died September 19. Mr. Grevel, who was a native of Germany, went to London first as an assistant in the house of Williams & Norgate. About 1864 he transferred his services to Asher & Co., of which firm he became a partner in 1875. Six years later the partnership was dissolved and Mr. Grevel set up in business himself at 33 King Street, Covent Garden, where he has since remained.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GEORGE BRANDES in the British Weekly denies in the most emphatic manner that he ever told any one that none of his writings had ever sold in more than forty copies. The fact is, he states, that he has been fortunate in finding a large public for his works at home and abroad. A number of his thirty different volumes have been issued in many separate editions, and of his recently collected works six thousand sets have already been sold.

ALBERT A. HARTSELL'S book, "Alicia," written around the Burdick murder mystery, is being made use of by his opponents against Hartsell's candidacy for a long term as judge of the new city court of Buffalo, N. Y. Hartsell was counsel for Mrs. Burdick, and wrote the novel after the case dropped. The story thinly veils the tragedy of the murder of Burdick in his home. "Alicia," the heroine, is Mrs. Burdick; "Mr. Blake," her husband, and the "Pendleton" of the story is Pennell, who, with his wife, went to death over the Jamerthal cliff. The book advances peculiar ideas of social and domestic relations.

AFTER a search of his former rooms in Boston, Mass., and his recent quarters at Monterey, Cal., the literary executors of Charles Warren Stoddard have discovered that the author of the "South Sea Idylls" burned all the manuscripts of his unpublished as well as of his published poems the day before his death. Realizing that his end was near, Mr. Stoddard called his housekeeper to his bedside, and ordered her to prepare a fire on the hearth. One by one he went over the manuscripts that lay on the coverlid, and when he had finished the reading a wave of his hand consigned them to the flames. In this manner he saw his life's work virtually turn to ashes, for, in addition to poems that never saw the light of publicity, he destroyed every verse of his that had been published. These facts were brought to light through the efforts of Ina Coolbrith, the poet, and A. M. Robinson, the publisher, of San Francisco, to get possession of the dead poet's works, for the purpose of gathering them all in one volume and publishing them. Stoddard, in his last days, wrote two poems—"In the Shadow" and "When Life Frowns," that were very pessimistic and in great contrast to his usual optimism. These were burned with other works that his friends regarded as among his best poems.

UNIQUE HOLIDAY NOVELTIES.

William J. Burkhardt, 165 Danforth Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., has ready for the holiday trade a large variety of stamped and engraved cards and novelties, that promise to prove popular with Christmas shoppers. Among them is a copyrighted Christmas letter, stamped and engraved, which reads as follows:

Dear Friend

Christmas has come again with its pleasant memories and exchange of kindly greetings with those dear to us, and my thoughts turn to you and yours as no doubt you are also thinking of me to-day.

May the joyous Christmas spirit continue through the coming year and may you be blest with all that heaven can send, including health, happiness and prosperity, is my hearty Christmas wish for you dear friend.

Sincerely Yours

Copyright, 1909, Wm. J. Burkhardt, Jersey City.

Besides this there are also a number of stamped and engraved folders, the designs, embossed in colors, including sprigs of holly in green with scarlet berries, poinsetta, mistletoe and a bell in green and gold, etc.

A card which is meeting with a large demand is "A Xmas Will," with "Merry Christmas" stamped on the outside in gold and on the inside, a legal form bequeathing good will and best wishes for a right merry Christmas, with a gold seal attached.

A special favorite is a "Santa Claus Letter" card with a Santa Claus, stamped in red and green, with the following engraved words:

My Dear Little Friend

told me you have been very good since my last visit and asked me to send you this present. With love and best wishes for a Merry Christmas.

Sincerely your friend

Santa Claus.

Mr. Burkhardt's line also includes die-stamped holly and swastika tags with ribbon attached; holly-stamped envelopes in eight sizes, broom-pencil cards, novelty post-cards, and calendar fads and book supports.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

E. P. Dutton & Co. have among their importations copies of a special edition of Marlowe's "Hero and Leander," for which the English publisher, J. M. Dent himself, has specially cut the type, taking the Jenson type as the basis for his work.

Richard G. Badger has just ready a book for boys by Russell Whitcomb, entitled "Skimming the Air," a story of boys who built a dirigible balloon and successfully managed it through a series of adventures not too incredible for other boys to accept.

Henry Holt & Company will issue at once "Masters of the English Novel, a Study of Principles and Personalities," by Dr. Richard Burton, whose biblical drama, "Rahab," they recently published, and who is also favorably known for his "Literary Likings" and other books of literary criticism. This new book includes fourteen chapters, among them being "Fiction and the Novel," "Hardy and Meredith," "Stevenson" and the "American Contribution."

J. B. Lippincott Company have just ready "Bella Donna," by Robert Hichens;" special illustrated editions of Browning's "Pippa Passes and Men and Women" and "Dramatis Personæ and Dramatic Romances and Lyrics;" "The Story of the Sub-marine," by Cyrus Field; "Heroes of Modern India," by the Rev. Edward Gilliat; "A Trip to Mars," by Fenton Ash; "Finn, the Wolfhound," by A. J. Dawson; also, "Muriel and Her Aunt Lou," by May Baldwin.

The Macmillan Company publish this week in their Pocket Classics Series Stevenson's "Travels With a Donkey" and "An Inland Voyage," which puts in attractive form the two famous narratives at the disposal of any one with twenty-five cents to spend; "The Faery Queen and her Knights," retold for young readers by the Rev. Alfred J. Church; also, the third editions of "The Nature Study Idea," by Professor L. H. Bailey, who has completely revised and largely rewritten this valuable work for teachers.

Thomas Whittaker, Inc., have just ready "The Earthly Footprints of Jesus," by Dr. H. D. S. Sweetapple; "Notes of Sermons for the Year, Part 1," by Rev. H. J. Wilmot-Buxton; also, "The Old Road," thirty plain sermons by the same author; and "The Church Cathechism in Anecdote," by Rev. M. L. Dalton. They will publish shortly a work entitled "The Earthly Footprints of Jesus," by the Rev. Dr. H. D. S. Sweetapple, author of "A Message from Bethlehem." It consists of sermons on sacred sites and scenes.

The October dinner of the Booksellers' League will be held on October 20 in the new quarters of the Aldine Association, in the Fifth Avenue Building, at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, New York. The dinner is set for 6:30 o'clock P.M., and those who wish to have seats at the table must notify Charles A. Burkhardt, 31 West Twenty-third Street, before October 18. The guests of the evening will be W. Hanna Thomson, M.D., author of "Brain and Personality," and the Rev. Dr. Samuel McComb, joint author of "Religion and Medicine."

B. W. Huebsch has nearly ready a new volume in the Art of Life series called "Human Equipment: Its Use and Abuse," by Edward Howard Griggs, the editor of the series, who explains the right use of things—the relation of man to the tools and equipment of civilization, discusses the causes of panics and explains that expenditure in careless luxury does not benefit society—even if it provides work and puts money into circulation. "Back to Hampton Roads," Franklin Matthews's sequel to "With the Battle Fleet," telling of the cruise around the world of the American warships, appears this week.

Dodge Publishing Company will shortly issue "The Life of Me," by Ethel Shackelford, with many illustrations by Harry Miller. It is an amusing rendering of the supposed impressions and reflections of an infant philosopher from the age of one week to five years, as his young intelligence grasps the significance of people and things about him. The precocity of his conclusions, joined with the infantile simplicity of his point of view, make a very humorous combination. "The Life of Me," while supposedly by a small child, about a small child, is emphatically a book for the delectation of "up-growns," as he calls them.

Houghton Mifflin Company will publish next week "The Autobiography of Henry M. Stanley," edited by his wife, Lady Dorothy Stanley, undoubtedly one of the most important biographies of the year; "Hints for Lovers," an amusing and witty gift-book, by Arnold Haultain; "John of the Woods," a story for young people by Miss Abbie Farwell Brown; "When She Came Home from College," a book for girls and parents, by Marian K. Hurd and Jean B. Wilson; "American Foreign Policy," by one of the most brilliant American diplomatists whose name is for obvious reasons withheld; also, "A Troop of the Guard, and Other Poems," by Herman Hagedorn.

The Century Company will publish shortly a sumptuous book on "French Cathedrals," by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pennell, who started out twenty years ago to make systematic study of the cathedral towns of France, the results of which will be embodied in this book, which carries 183 illustrations from Mr. Pennell, the originals of which are now in the Luxembourg Museum, the property of the French Government; "The Story of Dutch Painting," by Charles H. Caffin, written for adult students of art and for wide-awake girls and boys, with twenty-five half-tone reproductions of notable Dutch canvases; also, a novel entitled "An Unofficial Love Story," by Albert Hickman, author of "Oberproof," "Oriented," etc.

Brentano's are bringing out this week two entertaining novels very different as to plot. One, "Henry in Search of a Wife," tells the tale of a tactless, bald-headed bachelor, who has lost confidence in his ability to secure a life partner. His adventures in his quest, the constant good humor which accompanies it and the attainment of the goal are worth reading for those who would laugh. Alphonse Courlander is the author, and it seems to be quite a departure from his other works, "The Sacrifice" and "The Taskmaster." Gerald Biss, the author of "The Dupe," the other novel, has added an exciting mystery story to the sum of those already produced. There are so few good ones of this class that a truly "detective" story with undiscoverable turns and twists of plots is a thing to be welcomed by those who enjoy such tales.

For some time past Doubleday, Page & Company have had in preparation "The Every Child Should Know Encyclopedia," to cover a considerable number of volumes and to be issued in sections of ten volumes each. The first section on "Manual Training, or, Practical Things Every Child Should Know," will be ready for distribution in 1910, and will consist of the following volumes: "Housekeeping," "Mechanics and Engineering," "Outdoor Life," including Games, Carpentry and Plumbing, "Needlework and Basketry," "Gardening and Farming," including Grading, Draining, Road-making, etc., "Electricity and Telegraphy," "Home Decoration," including Wall Paper, Upholstery, Gilding, Framing, etc., "Care of Animals," and work in "Metals," "Clay," "Stone" and "Leather." The second section will be ten volumes on literature. The third will cover Nature, Science and Art.

Dodd, Mead & Co. have just ready the following novels: "Diamonds Cut Paste," by Agnes and Egerton Castle, a dainty and clever comedy; "The Island of Regeneration," by Cyrus Townsend Brady, a story with a startlingly original plot, describing the adventures of a young woman cast ashore upon a lonely island on which she finds a young man of European appearance, clothed like a savage and unable to speak in any known tongue; also, "They and I," by Jerome K. Jerome, a long, irresistibly funny novel by the author of "Idle Thoughts of an Idle Family." Other books just ready are "Famous Cathedrals, described by Great Authors," compiled by Esther Singleton, a companion volume to "Great Pictures," "Famous Paintings" and the others which have won for their compiler many complimentary endorsements; "The Kite Book," by B. Cory Kilvert, with illustrations in color by the author, a book for children of all ages that promises to make a hit; also, "Dick and Dolly," by Carolyn Wells, a boy and girl story written in Miss Wells's easy and entertaining style.

The John Lane Company will bring out at once a volume entitled "My Recollections," by the Countess of Cardigan and Lancastre, which contains the most intimate possible pictures of life among the English nobility and royalty. Lady Cardigan, it may be remembered, married the hero of the famous charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava. This book has made a great stir in England, owing to the frank way in which the writer speaks of some of the best-known people in England. It is a document full of human interest and written by one well qualified to describe court circles in the prime of the Victorian era. They have just ready Stephen Reynolds's satirical novel, "The Holy Mountain," and a new novel by Charles Marriott, entitled "When a Woman Woos," which tells the story of Dr. George Fielding, who upon the death of his wife with whom he lived unhappily, started life anew, retired to a small town in England to write a book on psychology, and while there met with the lovely Audrey Tregarthan. The story of this meeting and of its subsequent developments is skilfully delineated by Mr. Marriott.

HARPER & BROTHERS have in press a new volume by Margaret Deland, entitled "Where the Laborers are Few;" "Trix and Over-the-Moon," by Amélie Rives, a story of a woman who genuinely loves horses better than anything in the world; "Going Down from Jerusalem," by Norman Duncan, who, with one companion, Lawren S. Harris, the only white man in the caravan, made the journey described from Damascus to Cairo; "The Valor of Ignorance," by General Homer Lea, whose object it is to show the unpreparedness of the United States for war, for which Lieutenant-General Adna R. Chaffee has written an introduction; "The Involuntary Chaperon," a novel of South American life, by Margaret Cameron, (Mrs. Harrison C. Lewis;) also, "Chivalry," by James Branch Cabell, a young Virginian whose stories reflect his interest in those days of ancient lustre when the lover lay down and died for his lady, and the lady was worth dying for. The Harpers will also bring out during the month "Seven English Cities," by W. D. Howells, describing Liverpool, Manchester, Sheffield, York, Lancaster, Cambridge, and a little Welsh watering place; "Options," a collection of the popular stories of O. Henry, and "The Ruinous Face," in which Maurice Hewlett tells the story of Helen of Troy in his own inimitable way.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY publish this week "Court Life in China: the Capital, Its Officials and People," by Isaac Taylor Headland, said to give a fine portrait of the Empress Dowager, the author having had unusual opportunities to know the Empress and many of the high official ladies, and having procured for his book photographs and paintings of this remarkable woman as well as some illustrations from the brush of the Empress herself; "The Immigrant Tide: Its Ebb and Flow," by Edward A. Steiner, who under "The Outgoing Tide" shows the influence of the returned immigrant upon his peasant home; and under the division "The Incoming Tide" interprets the relations of the various races to our institutions and their influence upon them; and "From My Youth Up," the autobiography of Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster. "Masterman and Son," a novel by W. J. Dawson, whose "Prophet in Babylon" set so many people thinking, is also just ready, as are also "The Crown of Individuality," by William George Jordan, a volume of philosophical optimistic essays teaching courage, cheerfulness and charity; and "The Tarbell's Teachers' Guide for 1910," by Dr. Martha Tarbell, who is steadily coming to the very forefront as an original and forceful commentator on the Sunday-school lessons.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish this week two novels of interest. The one is entitled "Through the Wall," by Cleveland Moffett, a just mixture of French intrigue, of aristocratic degeneracy of American manhood, and a doggedly determined detective, Coquenil, who, understanding the laws of psychology, brings a difficult judgment of guilt in high places to a successful end. The other is "The Glimpse," by Arnold Bennett, author of "Old Wives Tales." In an autobiography the super-sensitive hero has wandered through the English setting of his life more or less forlornly. He says that his senses are exquisitely trained to the perception of beauty, that he perceived that he had never been happy nor made an approach toward happiness. Necessarily one so introspective makes his wife unhappy, and in spite of wealth and fame alienation takes place between them, with as ever the penalty and price that must be paid in regrets and suffering. They have also just ready "The Periodic Law," a new volume in the International Scientific Series, written by A. E. Garrett, of the London Physical Society, with the object of illustrating the periodic variations of the properties of elements considered in the ascending order of their atomic weights, illustrated with a table and diagrams dealing with the different branches of the subject; also, "Psychology and the Teacher," by Professor Hugo Münsterberg, which treats of imitation, memory, suggestion, etc., but, while showing the scope in this direction, it also defines its limitations, and treats school-teaching ethically, psychologically as to the child, and educationally.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

Around the World with the Battleships

By ROMAN J. MILLER

Chief Turret Captain U. S. S. "Vermont"

WITH INTRODUCTORY NOTE BY

JAMES B. CONNOLLY

EVERY dealer should be prepared to meet the demand for this unique juvenile book. "Around the World with the Battleships" is the only boys' account of the wonderful voyage, written with youthful zest by a writer who has spent the last five years of his twenty-five in the naval service, and who is enthusiastic in his patriotism and love of his calling.

The book is well illustrated, most appropriately bound, is splendid value for the money, and the demand can only be measured by the number of patriotic boys, old and young, in the country.

Illustrated, Cloth, 12mo, Price $1.25

TO ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Where Ever You are.

GENTLEMEN:—Shrewd, high class and high salaried advertisers have for many years appreciated the value of a mailing list.

An experienced advertiser must also understand the fact that results obtained from advertising must always be compared with the expense incurred.

Suppose for instance that you have a mailing list of 20,000 names. You know that there are certain fixed expenses such as postage, printing, stationery and labor, which must be met in sending out this list.

Postage is absolutely fixed. The expense of printing varies little so that the only saving possible is in the cost of labor.

The Elliott Addressing Machine enables one girl to address 20,000 envelopes or circulars per day as compared with a speed of 1,000 addresses per day of which she is otherwise capable.

On a list of 20,000 names this is a direct saving of 19 days of one girl's time.

This letter is written as an advertisement and if you are interested, will you kindly reply to the
